SIMPLIFIED SPACES

Open The Door
To Organization

Greetings!

Want more space? Need more clarity and efficiency when you store your stuff? Do you feel like you're running out of space and aren't sure where to look for more? Look no further, your search is over! Let me introduce you to the next frontier in extra space...your door.

That's right, open the door to extra space by closing your door! Huh? Ok, hear me out on this one. The back of your door is a rarely used space that will yield you about 16 square feet of extra available space! Storing items on your doors can be one of the best places to organize because you can't stack & pile things on the back of your door...yay gravity! I'm going to get your creative juices going by giving you ideas for how to best use your doors for organization, as well as some of my favorite door products.

Opening the Door to More Space

Welcome to the back of your door! With the right tools you can turn any door into an organizing playground. These great door storage options are inexpensive and usually take little to no installation. All you may need is an overdoor hook and you are ready to get organized! You can use any door, cabinet, cupboard, or even the backside of your shower curtain.

Getting organized is not always the prettiest thing, but "behind the door" solutions are great because they are discreet and easy to move into a closet if you need to "pretty up" when you entertain.

Here are some of my favorite organizational tools for your doors. I choose products from the Container Store because they are a great one stop shop for organizing products, have a wonderful return policy and the employees are helpful, knowledgeable & friendly.

Now that you've seen some of the great organizing options for behind your door, think outside the box to see how it can work even better for you. For example, the shoe organizer could also be used to hold office supplies, toys, or art supplies. Use the cooking utensil hooks in the bathroom to hold your brush, blow dryer or curling iron under the sink. Try putting the laundry supply holder in your linen closet to hold your extra toiletries and cosmetics. Once you tap into the world of door storage, the possibilities are endless!
